Bad Fischau.

12. On 21 December, the former Kurhaus (spa hotel) in Bad Fischau (O 48/X 34), which had been converted into a barracks installation, and six adjacent wooden barracks buildings were heavily occupied by troops wearing black-bordered red epaulets. The total strength was estimated at one battalion. About 100 troops were drilling in the area south of the Voellersdorf Plant and north of the Fischbach (brook), which flows east of Bad Fischau. [] this training area was the permanent drill field of the unit stationed in the barracks installation. At noon, several officers carrying pamphlets drove from the billeting area to Wiener Neustadt. Soldiers of a platoon that marched through the town wore black-bordered red epaulets. Motor vehicle [] left the barracks installation.
